INTRODUCTION

Visitors to the Terra Alta can enjoy some twenty wineries in different parts of the county that offer guided tours and unique wine tourism experiences.

To be in the Terra Alta is to be surrounded by vineyards and the aroma of the grape is never far from its towns and villages. Today, visitors can enjoy around twenty wineries spread throughout the county that offer guided tours and unique wine tourism experiences, many of which are linked to the traditional cuisine of the area.

There are all types of wineries, ranging from the cooperatives founded almost a century ago and family businesses with many years of tradition, to new, innovative enterprises run by young oenologists moved by their passion and love for the land and their work.

In recent years the whole sector, together with the local institutions, has been making considerable efforts to promote this region through itineraries that take in vineyards, wineries, landscapes, towns and villages.

These routes can be taken by car, by bike or on foot, as the distances here are relatively short in this county of the Terres de l'Ebre, which was declared a UNESCO Biosphere Reserve in 2013.

Grenache blanc is the most traditional grape variety in this county.

Wines made with Grenache blanc are distinguished by their yellow colour, with highlights that range from pallid to golden, a subtle nose and, above all, an intensity of flavours on the palate.

GRENACHE BLANC

The use of the Grenache blanc grape (Garnatxa blanca in Catalan) has become the main differentiating feature of the wines made in the Terra Alta, conferring on them a singularity that few wine-growing areas in the world can boast. For this reason, the bottles of local wine made with this native variety bear the hallmark “Terra Alta Garnatxa blanca” as a differentiating element.

With this seal of quality, the Regulatory Council recognises their superior quality and singularity, promoting viticultural excellence in the DO Terra Alta and offering the market an exclusive product.

The single-variety Terra Alta Garnatxa blanca (Grenache blanc) wines are distinguished by their yellow colour, with highlights that range from pallid to golden, a subtle nose and, above all, an intensity of flavours on the palate. A colour and taste that, far from stereotypes, never relinquishes the authenticity its Mediterranean origin confers on it.

MODERNIST WINERIES

The Terra Alta county offers visitors two of the most imposing wineries built during the Modernist movement of the early 20th century, partly in response to the unprecedented crisis caused to the Catalan countryside by the phylloxera plague.

The so-called “Wine Cathedrals” –the cooperative wineries of Gandesa (1919) and Pinell de Brai (1918)- were both designed by the architect and disciple of Antoni Gaudí, Cèsar Martinell (Valls, 1888 – Barcelona, 1973). They are the clearest exponents of this architecture, which spread from the Terra Alta to the rest of the world, boosted by the birth of the cooperative movement.

Visitors to these two wineries will discover that the simplicity of the materials with which they were conceived –designed to facilitate their operation- combines with the artistic beauty of their majestic arches, which seem to rise out of the earth, and the exterior decoration of wrought iron, local stone and glazed tiles.

Interior of the Gandesa Wine Cooperative.

The cooperative wineries buildings of Pinell de Brai and Gandesa, both designed by Cèsar Martinell and known as the Wine Cathedrals, are now famous as two of the most outstanding examples of Modernist architecture.

RIBERA D'EBRE

The Ribera d'Ebre wine producing region is made up of 23 wineries that market their wines mainly through the DO Tarragona and DO Montsant.

In Ribera d'Ebre county there are currently 23 wineries that market their wines under different designations of origin, including DO Montsant and DO Tarragona. Almost 800 hectares of this county's vineyards are divided between those two designations of origin. In recent years, the wineries of the Ribera d'Ebre have put their faith in wine tourism in order to grow their businesses and bring their wines to a wider audience.

The River Ebro, which crosses the county from the north at Riba-roja d'Ebre to the south at Miravet, is the most outstanding feature of this region that seeks to open itself up to wine tourism in Catalonia. For this reason, it promotes the tours and activities organised by the wineries located near the river or the Llaberia Mountains; activities that are often linked to the area's traditional gastronomy, such as the popular clotxa (a kind of sandwich).

The Celler Aibar 1895 winery is in Darmós. Its main activity is the production and marketing of quality DO Montsant wines from its own vineyards. It also bottles and markets olive oil from its own olive trees. To make all this possible, as the old winery was small and in an urban location difficult for vehicles to reach and manoeuvre in, a new winery was built on the outskirts of the village, near the 17th-century olive mill and water wheel in a 22-metre-deep well, which can now be visited.

The wine tourism itineraries are cultural journeys through the history of the winery. "Here we bottle the family's aspirations", explains Josep Maria Anguera, their oenologist. The idea is for visitors to experience and participate in a dialogue with the producer; for the tour of the estate and the winery and the tasting to be an exchange of knowledge and pleasure. The tour allows visitors to get to know and immerse themselves in the countryside and offers a different view of the Priorat from Darmós, in Ribera d'Ebre county.

THE VIA VERDA (GREEN WAY)

The almost 50 kilometres of the Via Verda (Green Way) through Terra Alta and Baix Ebre Counties offer a tranquil walk with a gentle gradient suitable for families with children. With the River Canaletes as a silent companion, the route leads us through steep landscapes of vineyards, areas of natural pools, old railway tunnels and abandoned stations, such as those of Horta de Sant Joan, Pinell de Brai and Bot. Some of the stations have been refurbished and turned into new attractions, such as that of Benifallet, close to the Ebro.

TORTOSA

Today, Tortosa is an open town clearly marked by the River Ebro as its most characteristic feature and such outstanding festivals as Holy Week and the Renaissance Festival.

Among its monuments highlights the imposing La Suda Castle, a testimony to the Muslim presence in the area; the Cathedral; the Princes' Gardens; the Royal Colleges; the Tortosa Museum, and the Jewish Quarter, a maze of narrow streets with an urban structure that has remained virtually intact until today.

SITES OF THE BATTLE OF THE EBRO

The Battle of the Ebro still lives in the memory of Terra Alta and Ribera d'Ebre Counties, thanks to the efforts made to recover the historical legacy. Of particular interest is a visit to the Old Town of Corbera d'Ebre, which was bombed and virtually destroyed during the battle. Some fifteen signposted sites can be now visited to see the trenches, bunkers and air-raid shelters and learn how the soldiers lived in them. You can also walk across the land in the Pàn-dols and Cavalls Mountains, where the opposing armies were camped.

MIRAVET CASTLE

This 12th-century fortress was built by the Knights Templar on a hill overlooking the River Ebro from where they controlled the whole territory. It was the Templars' headquarters in the Kingdom of Aragon and between 1307 and 1308 it suffered a devastating siege at the hands of King James II. The castle has witnessed most of the conflicts that have affected Catalonia over the centuries, including the War of the Spanish Succession, the Catalan Revolt (or Reapers' War) and the Peninsular War. The castle has been well conserved.

OLIVE OIL TOURISM

The benign climate of the Terres de l'Ebre make it one of the best regions in Catalonia for growing olives and producing the high quality DOP Baix Ebre-Montsià and DOP Terra Alta olive oils.

Moreover, the territory of La Sénia, a geographical enclave set between Catalonia, the Valencian Country and Aragon, has, in recent years, discovered the attractions of strolling through groves with more than 4,000 millennial olive trees.

This legacy of the Mediterranean and Catalan cultures is an important natural, historic and scenic heritage that is unique in Spain and practically in the whole world. The majority of these olive trees are in the municipality of Ulldescona, which has more than 1,300 specimens, 35 of which are on the Fondo de l'Arión, one of the estates of Roman origin on which these ancestral trees have been documented. You can visit them on guided tours, which always end with a tasting of the olive oil produced there.

There are few experiences as gratifying as tasting olive oil in the shade of an olive tree that is a living witness to some of the most important events that have taken place in our land, and to taste the same fruit as our ancestors did 2,000 years ago.

THE MILLENNIAL OLIVE TREES NATURAL MUSEUM

Olive oil is one of the keys to understanding the essence of the Mediterranean culture; for more than two millennia the olive has been cultivated by all the cultures that have taken up residence on our fertile lands. It is the only living vestige that contemplates our particular passage through history and makes up a true millennial cultural landscape.

Olive cultivation arrived with the Greek and Phoenician traders from the Eastern Mediterranean. However, it was the Romans who brought great innovations to olive growing and turned the Iberian Peninsula into the largest olive oil-producing region in the entire Empire. The next culture to take over the territory was the Muslims from Al-Andalus, who brought new crops and improved the existing ones with new techniques and revolutionary irrigation systems, many of which continue in use today. In the Terres del Sénia, and at Ulldecona in particular, we find the largest known concentration of millennial olive trees in the world.

The l'Arión estate, with some 400 specimens catalogued, two of them declared “Monumental Trees” by the Government of Catalonia, constitutes one of the most authentic examples of how traditional millennial agriculture has overcome the passage of time to merge with the modern surroundings. Here we find the Fondo de l'Arión with its Millennial Olive Trees Natural Museum, opened in 2011. In it we can admire 35 specimens of true living sculptures with their massive, gnarled trunks, fruit of the passing of time and the scars it has left on their bark. Magnificent millennial olive trees can also be found in other towns and villages in the area, including La Sénia, Freginals, Mas de Barberans, Godall, Santa Bàrbara, Alcanar, Sant Carles de la Ràpita and La Galera.

According to a study undertaken by the Polytechnic University of Madrid, La Farga de l'Arión is 1,701 years old, making it the oldest olive tree both in Spain and the rest of the world, according to Professor Antonio Prieto.

The towns and villages

Millennial olive trees can be found in various municipalities in Montsià county, including Uldecona, La Sénia, Freginals, Mas de Barberans, Godall, Santa Bàrbara, Alcanar, Sant Carles de la Ràpita and La Galera.

Lo Parot in Horta.

Also in Horta de Sant Joan, in Terra Alta County, just 500 metres from the town we find a millennial olive tree, Lo Parot, a spectacular 8-metre-tall specimen with a 15-metre perimeter trunk. It has been declared a monumental tree by the Catalan Government and has become a symbol of the town.

THE TERRA ALTA OLIVE OIL ROUTE

The proposed Terra Alta Olive Oil Route begins at Arnes, at the olive oil mill refuge that has recently been turned into a tourist information point. From here we take the T-330 road as far as the track that leads to La Franqueta farm (Horta de Sant Joan) and then continues to the Viarnets district, where we can see fields of the empeltre variety olive trees.

After passing through the municipality of Horta de Sant Joan, the next stop on the route is Lo Parot, a millennial olive tree declared a monumental tree in 1990 that has become a symbol of the town. Our itinerary continues along the T-334 road to Bot where, on the outskirts of the municipality and very close to the Via Verda (Green Way), are the remains of the town's olive mill.

From Bot we go to Caseres, where we can visit an estate of olive groves to see the results of olive tree cultivation. Next the route heads towards Batea, where we recommend a visit to an estate with a super-intensive cultivation of the arbequina variety.

From here the route continues to Vilalba dels Arcs and La Pobla de Massaluca. In the latter municipality we can visit the modern olive mill. From here, following the TV-7411 road, after 15 km we come to the entrance to the Vall de Sant Francisco track (La Fatarella).

Continuing along this valley, we come to the municipality of La Fatarella and from there to the Els Raïmats district, where we can see an arbequina olive tree plantation.

After visiting La Fatarella, the route heads in the direction of the town of Gandesa, where a visit to Wine and Olive Area is a must.

The last municipality on the Terra Alta Olive Oil Route is Pinell de Brai, with its magnificent Modernist cooperative building designed and built by Cèsar Martinell in the early 20th century. Inside we can see the old pneumatic press.
